

The Camden Safeguarding Adults Partnership Board (SAPB) was very sorry to learn of the circumstances which led to the death of YY. The Board welcomes this comprehensive review – which provides invaluable learning for all our partner agencies in their ongoing work with people with complex long term conditions who experience difficulty, at times, in accepting professional advice and support.

“We will strive to ensure that the recommendations in this report will improve the way we work with people in similar situations and, to that end, each of the partner agencies involved are developing detailed action plans. The Board will hold these agencies to account in their implementation of these actions and monitor the impact on improving the safeguarding and wellbeing of adults at risk.

“On behalf of the Camden SAPB I would like to extend our condolences to the family and friends of YY. Our thanks to colleagues in all organisations involved in this review for their transparency and commitment to learning and making the changes that will help to prevent similar deaths in the future wherever possible.”
