

“Volunteering with the English class has shown me that I have more skills than I thought I had, and I feel fantastic that I’m able to help such lovely, motivated people. Although I’m not an expert, I can still help learners with their reading and writing, and I learn about them too. It’s such a friendly and supportive group, and the tutor always makes sure I’m clear about what I can do to help. It’s great to feel like I’m making a difference.”

“Last year C was nominated as an outstanding learner at the Camden Adult Learning Celebration and has since become a Volunteer Learning Support Assistant - which she has excelled at too. She has given sympathetic support and has produced learning aids which have provided guidance to both learners and the tutor. She has been an invaluable support.”

“After being a learner on a Photoshop course; B was approached to become a volunteer because she was always so kind and helpful to others in the classroom - as well as being very capable. She has been brilliant in her work as a volunteer, and is extremely reliable and professional at all times. She has a quiet but wonderful attitude, a great sense of humour and works well with everyone. Her team feel very lucky to have her.”

“C. trained in 2014 as a volunteer for the ‘family learning in prisons’ project. She worked the maximum three visits she was allowed at both prisons. As a direct result of this she met a worker from an organisation which works with prisoners who have drug or alcohol related difficulties. When a job came up, she applied and was successful. She is very happy in this work and the new direction her life has taken.”
