

Belsize Walk

Primrose Hill to Parliament Hill

Belsize Walk links Primrose Hill and Parliament Hill with an architectural walk passing through the Belsize conservation area. Working with the Belsize Residents' Association, Camden Council has produced a pocket-size guide to the walk, which contains a detailed map and provides a wealth of information on architectural periods, historic buildings and places of interest.

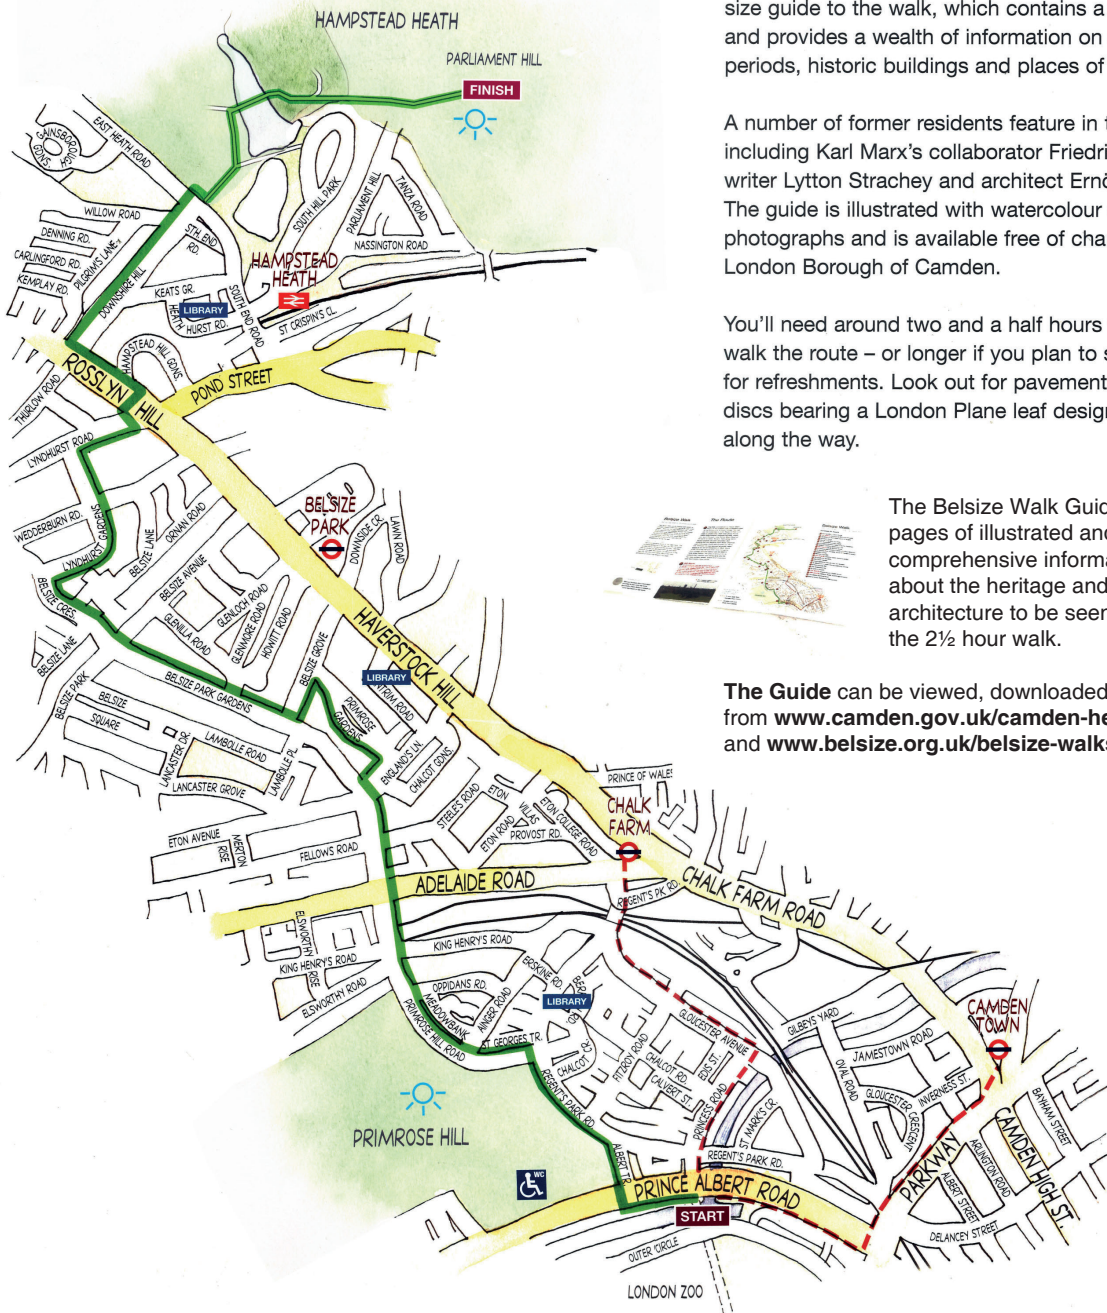

A number of former residents feature in the text, including Karl Marx's collaborator Friedrich Engels, writer Lytton Strachey and architect Ernő Goldfinger. The guide is illustrated with watercolour sketches and photographs and is available free of charge from the London Borough of Camden.

You'll need around two and a half hours to walk the route – or longer if you plan to stop for refreshments. Look out for pavement discs bearing a London Plane leaf design along the way.

The Belsize Walk Guide has eight pages of illustrated and comprehensive information about the heritage and architecture to be seen during the 2½ hour walk.

The Guide can be viewed, downloaded and printed from www.camden.gov.uk/camden-health-walks and www.belsize.org.uk/belsize-walks

A variety of architectural styles that have shaped Belsize, can be viewed along the route.

Belsize Walk information

-  11 mins walk from Camden Town station
-  12 mins walk from Chalk Farm station
-  Camden libraries with free walk guide
-  Public toilets with disabled facilities
-  Viewpoints at Parliament Hill and Primrose Hill summits